DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (if known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Located on Abbeville's Court Square in the City Municipal Building. This building is part of a government complex that was built in 1904 and also included the county Court House next door.

Brick building, three stories; unusual brick work on main floor includes brick sunburst around keystones; elaborate entrance crowned by large diminishing stone slabs; masonry quoins; large entablature with dentils and fretwork; parapet above has raised central portion.

Opera House interior is on three levels: orchestra section, balcony and upper gallery. Box seats on each corner of proscenium reach from orchestra floor to ceiling and are flanked by Corinthian columns. Stage area is 7,500 square feet with a full "fly loft," cat walks around stage area and from dressing room area to orchestra pit; 12 dressing rooms. Completely new lighting system (the old lighting panel is still in the building as a conversation piece). Restoration project started in May 1968 and still in progress, has repaired most of the structural decay and provided modern staging facilities. Present seating capacity is 420: 300 seats in orchestra, 120 in first balcony and boxes. Potential seating is 1,000. Elaborately decorated: seats upholstered in red; red carpeting; red velvet curtain with gold trim. Gilt trim conforms with turn of century rococo tastes.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

As well as being a plush reminder of the period when Old Abbeville was the center of culture for this entire Piedmont district, the restored Abbeville Opera House provides a historic setting for a modern community theater which involves a wide surrounding area. Restored and renovated in an exceptionally distinguished manner, the Opera House is a valuable memento of a colorful and typically American era. One of the very few such opera houses remaining in South Carolina, its value is increased both by the integrity of its restoration and its modern usage.

The Abbeville Opera House first opened in 1904 with a production of "The Clansman," and during the heyday of circuit theater, shows like "The Great Divide" and "Ben Hur" (with horses) played continuously. American theater's most prominent attractions — such as the Ziegfield Follies, George White Scandals, Jimmy Durante, Fannie Brice — played here. For the traveling road companies, on the way from Richmond to Atlanta, Abbeville Opera House was a regular one night stand. It was the only theater in the area which could accomodate the elaborate productions. (Its companion, the Opera House in Columbia, was demolished long ago). Theatrical nights in Abbeville were gala, white-tie, evening-gown affairs; the Southern Railroad ran special trains to accomodate the hundreds of patrons who came from surrounding towns.

In addition to the theater, Abbeville Opera House was a center for other major Abbeville events. According to local sources, William Jennings Bryan spoke from this stage during a campaign for President of the United States.

The Abbeville Opera House is now the home of the Abbeville Community Theater, which produced eight major shows during its first 1968-69 season in the building. Ranging from Shakespeare's "King Lear" to "Sound of Music," the year's roster included two productions from nearby colleges: Lander College in Greenwood and Erskine College in Due West. This indicates its district importance. The newly renovated facilities also enabled the Community Theater to host the American Community Theater Association Festival for the 10 Southeastern States in 1969. The American College Theater, also representing 10 southeastern states, will hold its Drama Festival there in January, 1971.

Location of the Opera House on the Town's historic Court Square further solidifies its importance as part of Abbeville's heritage.
