DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (if known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Red brick Victorian Gothic church, completed 1872, has double-shouldered buttresses, large arched center entrance with double doors flanked by similar arched entrances. Above left entrance is a fully-developed tower with steeple; matching lines extend to the roofline on the right. On both towers are four pinnacles topped by unusual crown-shaped ornaments. Exterior displays much use of stonework and ornate brickwork; closely-spaced modillions support outside cornice. Stained glass windows; six on each side, one large ~~at~~ <sup>at back of</sup> sanctuary, one above each entrance, one small on either side of main doorway. Windows depict life of Christ without using human figures.

Inside: ceiling of church has exposed beams; unusual shouldered Gothic doors on either side of sanctuary. Balcony in rear features curving Gothic balustrade.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

One of Columbia's four most historic churches; fine example of Victorian Gothic architecture. Unusual shape of pinnacles gives appearance of Islamic influence. Chancel chairs in sanctuary were gift of Gen. Wade Hampton III.

Congregation organized 1803; frame church, first house of worship in Columbia, built 1804 under direction of pastor John Harper, ordained by John Wesley. Famous Methodist Bishop Francis Asbury frequently visited church in early 1800s. William Capers appointed pastor 1831-- renowned preacher, much involved in education and ministry of slaves, first bishop elected by Methodist Episcopal Church, South, buried beneath altar of present church. Brick structure erected in 1830s burned 1865; according to legend Union soldiers looking for First Baptist Church, site of first meeting of South Carolina secession convention, were directed here by Baptist sexton. Small chapel built of brick salvaged from ruins and replaced 1872 by present church erected with funds collected throughout the nation.
